Pikeland Friends Cemetery

The Pikeland friends' meeting was established by Quakers in 1758 and in addition to a one-story stone meeting house, they built a burial ground. In 1819 A new plot of land for the meeting house and burial ground was established by Emmor Kimber and is now located on the southeast side of Route 113 at Hare's Hill Road.

Centennial Lutheran Church was established in 1876 and replaced what was the Pikeland Friends Meeting House after the meeting house closed in 1870. The church expanded the standing structure without damaging its integrity or the preserved burial ground.

Zion Lutheran Church is located south of Route 724 at Bonnie Brae Road and is one of the oldest church congregations in the area. Established in 1774 the two-story stone church known as Zion Lutheran Church replaced the log structure of what was the German Reformed Congregation of Vincent Township, which was dated back to 1733. The stone church was used as a hospital in the Revolutionary War when General George Washington sent wounded from Valley Forge and from the battle of Brandywine to be tended to. In 1861 the old stone church was replaced by the Gothic Revival-style church that exists today.

St. Peter's German Reformed Church

Located on the northeast side of Clover Mill Road on the southeastern slope of the hill. This is now the site and graveyard of the St. Peter's German Reformed Church, which was established in 1770. In 1811, a stone church replaced the former log building which they shared with the Evangelical Church on alternating Sundays. It burned down in 1835, but its basic structure can still be seen today.

St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church & Graveyard

Located northeast side of Clover Mill Road near the top of the hill. The church itself was originally log structure, but was replaced with a stone structure in 1811, which they shared with the St. Peter's German Reformed Church. The Evangelical Lutheran Church Congregation built their own church in 1841. The new church was renovated in 1889 into the form of a steep roofed, Gothic Revival-style building with tall, pointed-arch windows, and a stucco stone.
